

WOMAN STRUCK BY NEGRO IN 'L' TRAIN BY NEGRO MAKES SCENE IN COURT

Sight of Her Assailant
Throws Mrs. Oliver
Into Hysterics.

The sight of the lanky West Indian negro who so brutally assaulted her on an elevated train last night threw Mrs. Isabel Oliver, a young Southern matron, into hysterics today in the West Side Court. Screaming and struggling with her husband, David Oliver, she was carried away, and Magistrate Cornely adjourned the hearing until to-morrow morning.

When the case was called Mrs. Oliver sat with her husband, sobbing. A veil hid her face. She screamed at sight of her assailant as he appeared on the bridge flanked on one side by a white lawyer and on the other by a negro. Leaping to her feet, she plucked a long hairpin from her hat and fought to get at him. He stood motionless and apparently ready to repeat the blow that felled her last night. The courtroom was in a tumult.

"Case continued," said the Magistrate to end the scene. "Defendant held in $500."

On the sidewalk outside the courtroom Mrs. Oliver, still veiled, became enraged at every black or yellow face she saw. She tried to reach a group of five negro men. A big crowd, including many negroes, gathered about the frenzied woman and her husband. There was prospect of a race clash when reserves came out and cleared the pavement. Mrs. Oliver was hurried away, weeping wildly.

Meanwhile Albert Trotter, the negro who knocked Mrs. Oliver down after shoving against her and cutting her on a crowded car of a Sixth avenue train, had been sent back to jail. He was still bruised and battered, but had recovered some of the nerve he lost when a crowd of men who witnessed the assault tried to knock him out. He is in the form of the Fifty-ninth street station.

The arrival of a policeman saved him from serious injury or perhaps death. Mrs. Oliver, who is a tall, rather pretty young woman, lives at No. 232 West One Hundred and Forty-second street. Her husband has a cigar stand at the Broadway Central Hotel. The negro's knuckles split her nose and blackened one of her eyes.

MINERS ANGERED BY HARSH WORDS

Men May Insist on Some Move to "Get Even" with Independent Operators.

Until to-morrow afternoon, when the committees of seven of the anthracite operators and the United Mine Workers meet at No. 143 Liberty street, there will be little or no action in the coal strike situation. The representatives of the miners are formulating an answer to the proposition made by the operators yesterday and the operators are waiting.

Some of the committee are indignant at the virulent tone of the independent operators who, in their communication to the committee of seven yesterday, called the miners "highwaymen and murderers." The tone of the independent will probably make the representatives of the workers resistant upon bringing up some matters for arbitration that will bear hard upon the independent, but have little effect on the big railroad companies.

President Mitchell, of the United Mine Workers, appears full of confidence. He refused to talk over the offer of the operators to submit the questions of wages and the Board of Conciliation to the old Anthracite Strike Commission, but it is understood he is willing to agree to the scope of the inquiry and to broaden it. The chance of a strike seems to have been averted.

ONLY SIX MINUTES TO CONEY ISLAND

That's the Whizzing Proposition of a Railroad Inventor
Who Wants a Franchise.

Six minutes from Flatbush avenue to Coney Island—average rate 100 miles an hour—is the latest proposed traffic agreement with the city.

The Mono-Rail Electric Road is the medium which is going to attempt this record-breaking, distance-unhindered project, and Coney Island is to be the objective point.

JAMES A. BAILEY IN CRITICAL CONDITION

There was an air of anxiety about the circus in Madison Square Garden this afternoon. James A. Bailey, the master mind of the great amusement enterprise, is in a critical condition at his country home, Corcoran Manor, near Yonkers, and while he has not changed for the worse, the postponement of a favorable turn provokes alarm among his friends and associates.

Mr. Bailey suffers from erysipelas. He was attacked at the circus, the story opened two weeks ago, but his illness power and his desire to see everything finished before he leaves his bed. His post kept him moving too long. When he finally took to his bed he was seriously ill.

Reports from his bedside to his partners yesterday were encouraging, but the hope of a speedy recovery of the patient, today Hamilton was informed at noon that Mr. Bailey's condition was unchanged.

The noted circus man is seventy years old.

VAGRANCY CHARGE FOR UNFORTUNATE WOMEN.

Capt. Hodgins won a test case in the Jefferson Market Court today by which he hopes to be able to convict women arrested for street-walking in his precinct and send them to the island. Ever since Hodgins started his housecleaning he has been trying to have the women charged with vagrancy instead of soliciting. Today he made a clear case against Susan Bufeta, of No. 314 West Thirty-fourth street, and Magistrate Flinn sentenced her to thirty days.

The woman was arrested by Detective Murphy last night. He said in court that at the time of the arrest she confessed to him that she had no other means of support. When the Magistrate heard this he said:

"I do not like to send these unfortunate women to jail. They have to live, and we cannot throw them into the river or poison them. In this case there is nothing else but the island."

Capt. Hodgins had eleven other women arrested in two raids in West Thirty-first street. He wanted to have them charged with vagrancy, but Magistrate Flinn discharged them.
